The Trolley Excursion.

On Tuesday the children and teachers of the First Church Sunday School and a great many older friends enjoyed the trolley ride which had been arranged to take place on that day. The afternoon was a perfect one, no ringing of the church bell was necessary to settle the question of going, and by four o'clock a good representation from Hope Chapel was in waiting at Liberty Street. Eight cars were furnished by the Traction Company for the accommodation of the excursionists, and they were filled with out delay at the appointed time. As the cars passed through the Centre greetings were exchanged with the friends who had gathered along the way to see how the Presbyterians would look on a special street car. Between the railroad and the canal bridge the rate of speed was sufficient to satisfy the youthful excursionists; and so on down to the terminus at Elizabeth, with no unnecessary delay, the trip was made. Here seats were reversed and the cars started on the home stretch. Excellent time was made and the starting point was reached at a quarter before seven.

In response to the superintendent's request the members of the school marched through Liberty Street to the foot of the green, where the Star Spangled Banner was sung.

They proceeded up to the church, where chairs had been placed on the lawn and ice cream was served to all.

How He Ruined an Officer For Him Ungentlemanly Conduct.

One of Messrs. Cassell's publications says that the late Charles Bradlaugh, when in the British army, was orderly room clerk, and a newly arrived officer once entered the room where he was sitting at work and addressed to him some discourteous order. Private Bradlaugh took no notice. The order was repeated with an oath. Still no movement. Then it came again, with some of the words added. The young soldier rose, drew himself to his full height, and, walking up to the officer, bade him leave the room or he would throw him out. He went accordingly, but in a few moments the grumbling of muskets was heard outside, the door opened, and the colonel walked in, accompanied by the officer.

It was clear that the private soldier had committed an act for which he might be court-martialed, and as he said once, "I felt myself in a tight place." The officer, in conversation, and Private Bradlaugh was hidden to explain. He asked that the officer should state the exact words in which he had addressed him, and the other, who had, after all, a touch of honor in him, gave the offensive sentence word for word. Then Private Bradlaugh said, addressing the colonel, that the officer's memory must surely be at fault in his whole matter, as he could not have used language so unbecoming to an officer and a gentleman. The colon
